Bathing Ghat. As regards this subject, after making local enquiry and inspection I am satisfied that a bathing-ghat is required and will be a great benefit to the townspeople.

The proposed site which was in the bed of the tank was however found unsuitable, the water of the Tank (Dodkere) being shallow at the spot. On this point the Municipal Councillors and officials agreed to a suggestion made by me to select a site on the Tank bund where near the sluice deep water is always to be found even in the hot weather.

The estimated cost of the work, viz Rs. 1500 appeared to be unduly high. The explanation given was that it was necessary to construct two bathing Ghats - one for Brahmins and the other for Non-Brahmins. Instructions were given to prepare a detailed estimate and to reduce the cost as far as possible consistently with the work being made a pucka one.

Instead of constructing two separate Ghats as originally proposed, instructions were given to arrange, if possible, for one Ghat separating the portion reserved for Brahmins from that reserved for non-Brahmins by a partition wall descending to the edge of the water

This last arrangement, if found practicable, ought to materially reduce the cost of the work

The detailed Estimate prepared in the above lines should be expedited.
